

THE SCHOLARLY SPEAKER SERIES WITH HÉLÈNE QUANQUIN
1 MARCH 2021
12:00 PM VIA ZOOM

Héléne Quanquin is a Professor of American Studies at the University of Lille (France).

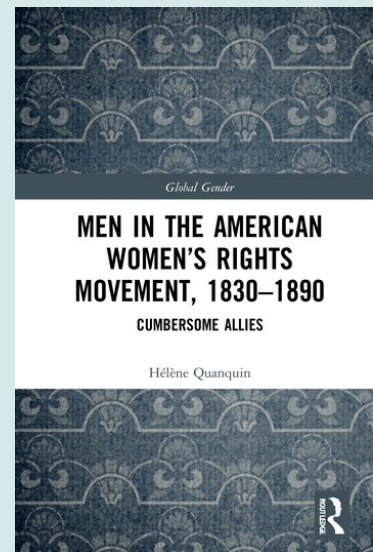

She studies 19th-century reform movements and activists. She is primarily interested in the mutual influence between the personal and the political and the different sites where political work is done and ideas are produced. She has published essays in European and American journals and books.

She has received fellowships from the Massachusetts Historical Society, the Schlesinger Library, the American Antiquarian Society, the Sophia Smith Collection and the Association Française d'Etudes Américaines.

Her book Men in the American Women's Rights Movement, 1830-1890: Cumbersome Allies (Routledge, 2020) deals with male ally activism in the 19th century.

Presented by
The Department of English Graduate Programs
In conversation with
The Program in Gender and Intersectionality Studies and
The Institute for Global Understanding

MEN IN THE AMERICAN WOMEN'S RIGHTS MOVEMENT: CUMBERSOME
ALLIES

For Zoom link and information, please contact Michele McBride
mmcbride@monmouth.edu