

HAVE A REVOLUTIONARY SUMMER!

Monmouth University's 2018 Archaeological Field School will be held at Morristown National Historical Park. This is a cooperative project between Monmouth University, Rutgers Newark, and the National Park Service. The project is directed by Richard Veit, Adam Heinrich, and Lee Slater. Fieldwork will focus on Continental Encampments from the winter of 1779-1780.

This is a three-credit course and may be taken for undergraduate or graduate credit (AN/HS 315, AN/HS 520). It also fulfills Monmouth University's experiential education requirement (ExEd). The course is held on Saturdays in Summer Session B, which runs from May 22nd to June 30th. There are no prerequisites for this course.

Students will learn basic archaeological field methods and will develop skills that will prepare them to work on an archaeological field crew. Skills taught include:

- Surface survey with map and compass and total station
- Excavation of shovel tests and excavation units
- Identification and cataloging of historic artifacts
- Artifact photography
- Report preparation

For more information or to enroll please contact Prof. Richard Veit, rveit@monmouth.edu or 732-263-5699.