CHRISTOPHER C. GORE, ESQ. OF GORE LAW OFFICES

“Voting Rights, Legal Cases, and the Black Vote”

Christopher graduated from Wesleyan University in 1997. After graduation, Christopher lived in Japan for two years teaching English classes and studying Japanese. He came back to the United States in 1999 and graduated from Rutgers Law School in 2002. While at Rutgers, he became the associate editor of the race and Law journal. Additionally, Christopher participated in the Rutgers Community Transactional Law clinic where he was a lead attorney on a 1.5 million-dollar project.

Post-graduation Mr. Gore has been employed by Union County College in Elizabeth New Jersey as an administrator with the Center for Economic and Workforce Development (CEWD). In this role, Christopher is responsible for bringing over 2 million dollars in grant funding. In 2012, Christopher opened a private law practice and works primarily with business startups in the area of business formation contract law and tax law. He also helps clients negotiate deals and advises clients on any business-related matters including purchasing commercial property.

Finally, Christopher believes in empowerment and he endeavors to unleash this potential that he believes is inherent in each individual.
