No Cheese

Like the cheese we use to make Van Camp's Spaghetti

Cheese is the dominant flavor in Italian style Spaghetti. So we spent years to get the utmost in cheese flavor. We store it for months before using to develop the right flavor.

All the Van Camp cheese comes from one small community. Nowhere else have we found a cheese to match it.

The next greatest quality lies in the sauce. The Van Camp experts—men with college training—tried out countless blends. Then our Domestic Science Expert—a woman—decided the perfect sauce.

The Spaghetti is important

In Italy, spaghetti is dried in the open. The atmospheric changes affect it. The Van Camp Spaghetti is dried in sanitary rooms, under studied and fixed humidity.

The Van Camp Spaghetti is made from Durum wheat. It is made by a new-day process.

Thus we have produced a Spaghetti such as Naples never served. It is so inimitable that we value the recipe at $500,000.

It gives Van Camp's supreme place in every home that tries it. Perhaps nothing we make has done so much to increase Van Camp prestige.

Van Camp's Spaghetti will multiply your enjoyment of this dish.

Then remember that all the Van Camp products have been equally perfected. All are developed by scientific cooks, by exacting methods and by countless tests.

They never vary. Each is made exactly like the model dish adopted.

When such delights cost no extra price, it is due to yourself that you get them.

Better than Naples

The prize Italian recipe was taken as our basis.

But Italy produces no spaghetti, no cheese, no sauce like Van Camp's.

Neapolitan spaghetti will disappoint you when you know Van Camp's.
