SOMETIMES, THE KEY TO SUCCESS is in the sheer power of inventiveness. In finding smart, working solutions to challenging problems. Whether it's something as simple as fixing a home cooked meal in a dormitory kitchen, or as weighty as choosing a career for yourself.

For example, choosing to attend a Black college can be a pretty smart decision. Because it's a decision that will place you in an environment that encourages you to go as far as you can, and will put you in the company of 40% of Black college graduates in this country.

And while you're away at school, discover the ingenuity of General Foods Minute™ Microwave Dishes. Delicious, convenient meals you can fix for yourself just about anywhere, in hardly any time at all.

General Foods, the maker of this and many fine family traditions you grew up with, wants to remind you that we've always been there for you... and we're still with you. All the way.
