

The first time it kind of scared me.
Now rice is the thing I do best.

For some reason, cooking rice seems to scare young homemakers. But they don't stay scared for very long. Because cooking rice is basically as simple as boiling water. All you need to know are a few simple rules and you're on your way. Rules like, don't wash rice. It doesn't need it. Use only the amount of water indicated on the carton or package. No stirring after the rice comes to a boil. No peeking while the rice is cooking. When finished, remove rice from the pan—it's ready to serve. That's all there is to it! You're a rice expert.
