

Monmouth University's Center for Speech and Language Disorders

NOW OPEN AND ACCEPTING NEW CLIENTS

Monmouth University's Center for Speech & Language Disorders is providing rehabilitation services to the neighboring community. The Center does not take insurance. No referrals are needed. An evaluation or treatment notes from a recent therapist is requested, as it would be helpful for the clinicians. The Center operates on a free service basis, with a one-time per semester registration fee of $295 per semester.

Therapy is provided twice weekly throughout the semester by a Monmouth University graduate clinician under the direct supervision of a Speech Language Pathologist with certification by NJ and ASHA (the American Speech and Hearing Association). Each individual treatment session lasts for 45 minutes. The Center also offers group therapy as determined by the clients' needs for that semester.

Treatment Services

The Center for Speech and Language Disorders offers evaluation and treatment in a wide variety of areas: augmentative communication, accent modifications, aphasia, apraxia, articulation disorders, auditory processing disorders, autism, cognition, dementia, language disorders, neurological impairment, phonological disorders, stroke, stuttering, voice, and others .

The physical facilities are accessible with a first floor location where there is plenty of parking. The Center is located at the Monmouth Graduate Center, 185 State Highway 36, West Long Branch, NJ 07764 with a phone number of 732-923-4547 and an email of MUSpeechCenter@monmouth.edu.
