Global Understanding Project
at Monmouth University

Program of Events for April 11 — 16, 2005

Monday, April 11, 2005

Welcome and Introductions	10:00 am
President Paul G. Gaffney II	Wilson Auditorium
Humanitarian Relief: Saving Lives, Changing Lives	10:00 am - 11:30 am
Gillian Sorensen Senior Advisor and National Advocate at the United Nations Foundation	Wilson Auditorium Keynote

Gillian Sorensen is Senior Advisor and National Advocate at the United Nations Foundation. She has had a long career working with and for the UN. Since 1993, she served as Special Advisor on Public Policy for Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali, then as Assistant Secretary General, head of the Office of External Relations for Secretary General Kofi Annan. She was responsible for outreach to civil society, including NGO's, and worked closely with diplomats, academics, parliamentarians, religious leaders, and others committed to peace, justice, development, and human rights. She is an experienced public speaker and has often represented the World Health Organization in this country and abroad.

Ms. Sorensen earlier served for over 12 years as New York City Commissioner for the United Nations, head of the City's liaison office with the world's largest diplomatic community, on appointment by Mayor Edward I. Koch. Her responsibilities related to diplomatic security and immunity, housing and education, and other cultural and business contacts between the Host City and over 30,000 diplomats.

Gillian Sorensen is a graduate of Smith College and studied at the Sorbonne. She has been a Fellow at the Kennedy School of Government (Institute of Politics) at Harvard University. Ms. Sorensen is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and the Women's Foreign Policy Group.

The AIDS Crisis in Kasana-Luweero, Uganda	10:00 am - 11:15 am
Laura Kelly	Edison 115 Classroom Colloquium

Fr. Brian Butch, MSW from CRS-Global Solidarity Project, will conduct a discussion about the AIDS crisis in 11 villages in a small district of Uganda. Although statistics indicate a decrease in AIDS infections in Uganda, Fr. Brian will present evidence to the contrary. He will discuss his visits and the work his group is doing to improve the living conditions for people of these villages. (PR422-01)

Genocide in the Darfur - Tracking the Crisis Online	10:00 am - 11:15 am
Eleanor Novek	Plangere 234 Classroom Colloquium

Students in the Online Journalism class will present their research on genocide in the Darfur region. They will track how the conflict has been covered in online media and identify the role of human rights organizations in bringing this human tragedy to light. (CO 333-01)

Electronic Computational Chemistry Conference All Week

Robert Q. Topper

The 10th Electronic Computational Chemistry Conference, an international conference of scientists working in the area of computational molecular modeling, will be held entirely on the Internet during the month of April 2005. This conference is completely free and is open to everyone. It is the longest-running online conference in the natural sciences. ECCC generally has unusually high participation from many scientists in developing countries compared to other scientific conferences. During the Global Understanding Convention, the ECCC will hold its "Interactive Week," which is when most of the active conference discussion will take place online. (CE475)

Security, Peace, and Democracy in the Middle East 2:30 pm

Paul G. Gaffney II, Jeffrey Laurenti, Saliba Sarsar, Mustafa Aksakal Anacon A
Panel Discussion

The Middle East is undergoing major changes, internally motivated and/or externally induced. The Iraq War, the Palestinian and Iraqi elections, and the march of freedom in Lebanon, Egypt, and elsewhere around the region, are prime examples. How is security addressed? What is its connection to democracy and peace? Is democracy healthy, limping along, or nonexistent? Is there hope for peace in this conflict-ridden region? What is the nature of the United States' involvement and what will its role be in the next decade? The panel will examine the interrelationships of security, democracy, and peace in the Middle East from multiple perspectives (e.g., history, national security, political science, and peace).

Words of My Perfect Teacher (2002) 4:30 pm - 6:45 pm

Pasquale Simonelli Anacon B
Film

From the World Cup to the mythical mountain kingdom of Bhutan, Words of My Perfect Teacher follows three students on a quest they hope will lead to wisdom. The catch is the teacher. Soccer obsessed, charismatic filmmaker, and citizen of the world, Dzongsar Khyentse Norbu, may be one of the world's most eminent Buddhist teachers, but it's a job description he slyly rejects at every turn. The film's point of view is inspired by Buddhist philosophy - which says that we can't really change human behaviour until we learn to deal with our mind. The mind is the starting point of all suffering, closed hearts, entrenched views, and prejudice. To study the mind, you need a teacher.

Global Water Issues and the United Nations 6:00 pm - 7:30 pm

Kevin Dooley Edison 115
Classroom Colloquium

1.1 billion people do not have access to safe drinking water. 2.4 billion people do not have adequate sanitation. This session will focus on the United Nations and water. Issues will include water as a common good, the inadequate distribution of water, the water crisis and poverty, water and women, and the conflict over the privatization of water.

Public Diplomacy as Symbolic Interactionist Process 7:25 pm - 8:30 pm

Juyan Zhang Plangere 134
Classroom Colloquium

Using the international relief efforts given in response to the Asian tsunami as a case, the research examines public diplomacy from a symbolic interactionist perspective.

Monday, April 11, 2005

Prisoner of the Mountains (2003) 7:30 pm - 9:30 pm

Thomas Pearson

Anacon B
Film

Set high in the imposing, isolated Caucasus mountains, where the 20th century meets ancient lifestyles, Sergei Bodrov's drama of the Chechyn war finds two opposing cultures locked in conflict for so long that the reasons seem moot. Young Russian grunt Vanya and his jaded veteran Sergeant survive an ambush by Chechyn guerrillas and wind up as hostages of a village elder, a war-weary widower who has lost almost everything to fighting and wants merely to swap them for his POW son. Bodrov's humanism is directed with empathy and stirred with harsh realism -- he takes no sides and offers no fantasies of happy endings, only small miracles of kindness that refuse to be swallowed in the destruction and mistrust. -- Sean Axmaker

Telling Stories: Literacy Through Personal Story Telling and the Book Arts 10:30 am - 2:30 pm

Nancy Nicolescu
Pat Cresson, Liz Mitchell

Art Studio 801
Lecture and Workshop
Capacity: 15 (Workshop)

This hands-on Book Arts Workshop demonstrates that personal stories encourage literacy by communicating unique ideas, traditions, cultures, and personal visions through creative performance. It is a forum to discuss culture and ideology, i.e., What is it that makes us who we are? Accomplished Book Artist Liz Mitchell presents the structure of book art projects and ideas for stimulating story telling. Stories of daily life, fairy tales, and universal knowledge inspire and refine writing, illustration, and editing skills in the process of creating original, aesthetic work. This session engenders a broader understanding of human diversity. (Content relevant to Education, Art, English, Anthropology, History, Sociology and other disciplines.)

Mr. Klein (1975)

1:00 pm - 2:15 pm

Jewish Culture Program and Dept. of Foreign Language Studies

Wilson Auditorium

Film

Robert Youdin

Alain Delon stars as the eponymous protagonist in Joseph Losey's first French film, MR. KLEIN. Living a fast life amid the chaos and turmoil of Nazi-occupied Paris, Mr. Klein makes his living buying art at cutthroat rates from desperate Jews fleeing the country. When a Jewish newspaper is mistakenly addressed to him, Klein learns of the existence of another, Jewish Mr. Klein. The secret societies and poisoned atmosphere of Vichy France come to life as Mr. Klein's Kafkaesque nightmare leads him unwittingly into a startled appreciation of the plight of the persecuted. Losey's restrained direction matched with Delon's emotive presence combine to create a powerful psychological and moral thriller.

Cup Final (1992)

2:30 pm - 4:00 pm

Jewish Culture Program, Department of Foreign Language Studies, and Field Practice in Social Work

Robert Youdin

McAllan Hall 324

Film

Cohen, a soldier in the Israeli army, is thrilled to have tickets to soccer's greatest event - the World Cup Final - but when Israel invades Lebanon, he's forced to stay on military duty in the desert. If that's not bad enough, some Palestine Liberation Organization soldiers on their way back to Beirut take him prisoner. Then, the PLO leader turns out to be a fan of Cohen's favorite team! Ironically, the two enemies are stuck in the middle of a war in the Middle East, when they'd both rather be at the championship supporting the same players.

The Great Debate:

Student Panel: Tourism, Tsunami and Terrorism 4:30 pm - 5:45 pm

Karen Schmelzkopf

HH 522

Panel Discussion

Visitor Capacity: 10

Tourism is one of the world's major industries and often considered to be a means of economic and sustainable development. However, a community dependent on tourism is vulnerable to such factors as changing trends, natural disasters, and terrorism. This panel will present case studies of areas that have suffered from natural disasters and terrorism.

Children Underground (2001) 4:30 pm - 7:15 pm
A film by Edet Belzberg

Rekha Datta

Marilyn Rocky

Anacon Hall A

Film

Visitor Capacity: 85

Five children, age 8-16, boys and girls, living in a Bucharest subway station, are filmed for more than a year. They are but few of the more than 20,000 Romanian street children, the human cost of the Ceausescu regime (1965-1989), which banned abortion and even contraceptive devices in order to increase the country's work force. Unwanted, unloved, they live like a feral pack, foraging for food and water, begging, fighting, playing, and fantasizing. The drug of choice is Aurolac, a highly toxic paint derivative whose fumes they inhale, sold over the counter. Like homeless children the world over, they are an undeniable black eye on the face of humanity, captured here with searing honesty. (PS 401)

The Aftermath of Disaster: Helping Children and Families Cope 4:30 pm - 5:45 pm

Jane M. Webber

MH 125

Classroom Colloquium

Disasters occurring worldwide create enormous trauma and suffering in children and their families as they struggle to cope and go on with their lives. Violence at Columbine and Beslan, September 11th, and natural disasters in Florida and Indonesia underscore the important role our global community plays in helping others recover. This class will provide an understanding of the impact of disasters and trauma on children and their families and how counselors worldwide can respond. (EDL 542)

Non-Standard Englishes Around the World 4:30 pm - 5:45 pm

Heide Estes

Wilson Hall,

Room 309

Classroom Colloquium

Visitor Capacity: 10

Used by native speakers and others, the English language reaches three billion people around the globe. People tend to think of the language as a single entity, a "network standard" spoken by news commentators, against which variations are construed as deviant and disruptive. In fact, however, English is spoken around the world in numerous varieties, each with an individual history accounting for differences in sounds, vocabulary, word endings, and other aspects from "Standard English" as used in the US and Britain. This classroom colloquium will consider some principles of language development varieties of English around the world. (EN 466)

From Plato to Summers: Are Women Innately Different than Men in Local and Global Contexts? 11:30 am - 12:45 pm

Rekha Datta Magill 108 - 109
Panel Discussion

Harvard President, Lawrence Summers, recently said that one explanation of why fewer women succeed in math and science careers is the innate genetic difference between the sexes. Taking cue from this suggestion, this panel will discuss if there are innate differences between men and women, not only in math and science, but in other attributes and whether they affect their professional and daily lives. Possible talking points for the following invited panelists will be: 1. Plato and 'Guardian' Women -- Eric Oldham, Student of PS 221 class 2. Will Condoleeza Rice make a good Secretary of State? Why was she not picked as defense secretary? Women & Military -- President Paul Gaffney 3. When Carly Fiorina resigned from HP, did it cast a shadow on women in leadership positions in business? What is it like for women in top decision-making positions in organizations? -- Patti Swannack 4. Women as leaders and followers in the Muslim World- - Farheen Haider, student of PS 221 class 5. Rice & Hillary for 2008? With male running VP mates? - Keriann Rotonda, student from PS 221 class.

Depleted Uranium: A Secret War? 1:00 pm - 2:15 pm

Robert Youdin Turrell Board Room
Workshop

Depleted uranium, a product of nuclear waste, is used in many applications today. DU is found in military armaments, as counterbalancing weights in airplanes, as armor for military vehicles, and other applications. The Department of Defense indicates that the amount of radiation exposure to the population and environment is minimal, posing no hazard. Many concerned scientists feel that DU is hazardous and that continued exposure to DU is leading to a catastrophic health crisis for the world. This session will explore the arguments on both sides with the intention of initiating further debate and investigation of this potentially dangerous trend in the utilization of nuclear waste.

Tsunami Relief Fundraising Effort 2:00-4:00 pm

Roundtable Dialogue: Global Access to Technology and the Knights of the Digital Divide 4:30 pm

Maureen S. Paparella
Eugene S. Simko

Bey Hall 229
Roundtable Dialogue

A technology guru from the MIT Media Laboratory recently attended the World Economic Forum "holding the holy grail for crossing the digital divide": a mock-up of a $100 laptop computer. He and others advocate the use of digital technology to improve the quality of life and erase economic barriers. The South Korean government promised to expand the broadband infrastructure to reach every household in the country by the end of this year. An ambitious, nearly $11 billion program, appears to be working, DSL and cable are provided to the average citizen at a rate much less expensive than in the United States. Our roundtable discussion will explore technology strategy in the global marketplace. Is it the role of the government to provide initiatives to eliminate the digital divide as has been done in South Korea? Is Bill Gates' argument that it is more important to address basic life necessities - health and food, for example, before connecting the world's poorest citizens to the Internet, a sound platform?

Responding to Genocide: Options and Possibilities 4:30 pm - 7:15 pm

Mary E. Swigonski

MH 227
Classroom Colloquium
Visitor Capacity: 10

After WW II, a chorus of voices proclaimed, "never again!" Never again would genocide be tolerated. Since then, genocides have been perpetrated in Africa, Europe, and the American continents. This session will examine two questions: What is genocide? (an analysis of definitions and stages), and what can the average American do? (an examination of knowledge, values, and skill that can be brought to bear in responding to genocide). (SW 224-01)

Women's Voices and World Visions 5:00 pm - 7:00 pm

Amy K. Schiava

Anacon B
Classroom Colloquium
Visitor Capacity: 22

Women's Voices and World Visions: Students will present a woman's voice that helped shape their own global perspective. Each student will share a story, a poem, showing a short film, bringing in a guest speaker to tell their story and how it changed their global vision. Each reading will hopefully spur an enlightening classroom dialogue. Anyone outside of my class who wants to present something can e-mail me in advance. (PS 377)

The Long Branch Concordance 6:00 pm - 8:45 pm

Dana Silverman

Anacon A
Panel Discussion

The grassroots initiative, the Long Branch concordance, has been working to bring the community together so that families and individuals of all ages and ethnicities in the Long Branch area can access the services and opportunities that will pave the path for an improved quality of life. You will leave this event with an understanding of the concepts behind collaboratives, where someone can go or offer help, and get to share ideas for your community...making the Long Branch Concordance truly your community organization.

The Uganda Egg Project

9:00 am - 3:00 pm

Barbara Paskewich

Anacon Hall

Laura Kelly

Poster Session

The Monmouth University Professional Nurses Association and several School of Nursing and Health Studies classes will join to design a series of visual displays at the Health Fair. The goal is to create an awareness of problems that are occurring in Kasana-Luweero, Uganda. AIDS has had a devastating effect on the people in this village. We are calling this the Uganda Egg Project, because in addition to creating awareness, we will also be raising funds to help an orphanage start a chicken farm. (HE 375, PR 422, HE 330)

What is Courage?

10:00 am - 11:15 am

Stuart Dalton

Bey Hall 126

Classroom Colloquium

Visitor Capacity: 10

What counts as bravery and what counts as stupidity in a military setting? As the world continues to engage in military conflicts and as the settings, situations, and rules of engagement continue to change, it becomes important to understand the nature and the role of courage. This discussion will draw from philosophers such as Plato to explore the enduring nature of courage. (PL 101-01)

Global Impact of Infectious Diseases

10:00 am - 11:15 am

Dottie Hutter

Edison 215

Classroom Colloquium

Outbreaks of infectious diseases around the world have been able to spread rapidly in modern times due to the ease of world travel. Localized outbreaks of infectious disease have devastating effects on the lives of local residents and the economy of the affected countries, and have the potential to cause global health problems. Presentations will be given by BY 101 students on topics ranging from health problems stemming from the tsunami, Ebola virus, cholera, yellow fever, and other infectious diseases. The causative agents, symptoms, and treatments of these diseases, and the world's response to these outbreaks will be reviewed. (BY 101)

Nancy J. Mezey
Joanne McKinney, Director

Wilson Auditorium
Classroom Colloquium
Visitor Capacity: 5

A presentation of the motivation behind and the resulting work of an on-going photographic project with child survivors of the 1994 Rwandan Genocide. The presentation will aim to ask the most provocative questions -- How could nearly 1 million people die at the hands of their neighbors in just 100 days? How could the U.S. and the U.N. stand by? What caused one American man to act? What is the perspective of the children who suffered the most? (SO 101 and GO 101)

I will be presenting a lecture on the Measles epidemic in Africa as part of my graduate research project. Along with discussing this epidemic, I will discuss the role that the American Red Cross plays in the vaccination of children in Africa. I will also discuss ways that we as local social workers can help with this problem.

Worker Voice in a Global Economy 2:00 pm
Patrick L. O'Halloran Wilson Auditorium
Robert Scott Panel Discussion

This would include such issues as unionization, worker representation, effects of globalization on the work force, the shifting balance of power between employers and employees, and possible policy implications pertinent to these issues. (BE 201-02)

Journey to the Sun (2001) 2:30 pm - 3:45 pm
Comparative Politics of the Middle East
Saliba Sarsar Bey Hall 222
Film

Set among the urban grime of working class Istanbul, Journey to the Sun focuses on two Turkish men on opposite sides of the political fence who become friends while escaping a flood of drunken, angry football hooligans. Young Mehmet (Newroz Sahon) is generally conservative, while Berzan (Nazmi Qirix) seems invested in the hunger strikes and Kurdish rebellion in the east. During a routine roadblock, Mehmet is mistakenly arrested for gun possession, and his dark skin makes him look like a Kurdish rebel to his interrogators. After days of questions and beatings, he wanders home dazed and broken through the industrial underbelly of the city. Arriving in his smoky, cramped flat, Mehmet discovers the police have marked his door with a red X, and he is kicked out of his apartment. Berzan comes to help, constantly skipping him around to new jobs and new beds to avoid the rebel's scarlet letter.

Battle of Algiers 4:15 pm - 7:15 pm
(Urbanization Around the World) 1967

Noah Lipman Wilson Auditorium
Christopher DeRosa Film

Director Gillo Pontecorvo's 1966 movie, The Battle of Algiers, concerns the violent struggle in the late 1950s for Algerian independence from France, where the film was banned on its release for fear of creating civil disturbances. Certainly, the heady, insurrectionary mood of the film... makes for an emotionally high temperature throughout.

Panel Discussion and Multimedia Presentation

Visitor Capacity: 75

Across the globe, world citizens take their messages from American media. It is imperative that we understand and take responsibility for our media messages by educating ourselves about how media messages are constructed, by engaging in production activities that contribute to understanding, and by empowering essential voices via the media environment. This forum addresses multi-faceted matters of Media Literacy through multi-media presentations and interactive dialogue. Enriching the program are dynamic, thought-provoking illustrations of national and international work in Media Literacy by students, educators, and artists.

The Global Understanding Project is our non-governmental organization—everyone in the Monmouth University community is welcome to join! Now more than ever, we need a fuller understanding of the world, and the world needs a better understanding of American ideas and ideals. This understanding will help create a more tolerant world, a world of hope and peace, in which human beings across cultures respect one another. That tolerant world, in all its variety and differences, will be a beautiful place, and we can cherish its richness.
