The Wayne D. McMurray School of Humanities and Social Sciences offers eight master’s degree programs (Anthropology, Corporate and Public Communication, Criminal Justice, English, History, Homeland Security (new for Fall, 2013), Mental Health Counseling, Psychological Counseling, and Public Policy), as well as twenty-four undergraduate degree programs. Graduate certificates are offered in criminal justice administration, homeland security, and three specific areas of communication. All programs of study are directed toward preparing students for working and living in a global environment.

Study in the humanities and social sciences and related professional fields provides valuable perspectives and skills necessary for both the job market and community life. Among our academic goals are proficiency in all forms of communication, such as scientific literacy; an appreciation for the diversity of people and ideas and the ability to collaborate with others; stimulation of aesthetic sensitivity and creative expression; and the ability to think and react critically.

Within the School of Humanities and Social Sciences are the Freed Chair in Social Science endowed through a gift from the Gerald Freed Foundation and the Jules Plangere Jr. Chair in American Social History endowed through a gift of Life Trustee Jules Plangere Jr. Professor William Mitchell, an anthropologist, occupies the Freed Chair; and Professor Brian Greenberg of the History Department occupies the Plangere Chair.
