A Note From President Gaffney

Dear Monmouth University Neighbor:

I hope you and your family are safe after Superstorm Sandy. Thanks to the hard work of many dedicated University employees, Monmouth University was able to keep the University community functioning and safe during the crisis as well as provide shelter for our neighbors in need.

Monmouth University’s MAC/Boylan Gym served as the biggest evacuation center in New Jersey for residents impacted by Sandy. The University was proud to offer a temporary home for the evacuees and the talent to run evacuation facilities, but most important was the incredible level of cooperation among the many organizations who cared so remarkably well for so many neighbors victimized by the storm. My hat is off to Sheriff Golden and his senior staff and our own Police Chief Bill McElrath for setting the tone of cooperation. When experts review evacuation operations around the state, I feel this cooperation will be judged as model.

Monmouth University students continue to give back to the community by organizing fundraisers and events for victims of Sandy.

I look forward to seeing you on campus soon. The University is filled with activities and events for you and your family. Please visit www.monmouth.edu for more information.

All the best to you and your family,

Paul G. Gaffney II
